VANCOUVER - About 1,700 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers went on strike Sunday night in the Vancouver area — the first of a series of illegal strikes over technological change issues.

In Victoria, a spokesman for the post office said mail is being handled normally.

However, he added, it won't be long before there is a delay in mail destined for the city if Vancouver postal workers remain off the job for any length of time.

He said Victoria CUPW members have been consulted on the new automated ma-chinery that will be used in the new post office, scheduled to open in early part of next year in the Glanford area.

The spokesman said the new machines will not replace any people but make their jobs easier, doing away with a lot of "the backbreaking, dull work."

Victoria was available to comment on whether members here are satisfied with their conditions or would join in the national dispute at

Trumped Charge In India Alleged

NEW DELHI, India (UPI)

A packed court today heard a severe indictment of through large-scale sabohi's government by a manacled socialist leader charged with conspiracy to overthrow.

It said the alleged conspira-

Fernandes and his 21 associates in the alleged con-spiracy were taken before the court for formal filing of the charges against them. They were manacled with chains held by police constables as they entered the court.

Holding up his hands, Fernandes told the magistrate, "these chains are the chains of dictatorship into which the country has been plunged."

It said the alleged conspira-tors set off several explosions last year in the states of Bihar, in the east, Maharash-tra, in the west and Karna-'taka in the south. It was the first time the government admitted that such sabotage had taken place and it was the first allegation of a plot to overthrow Mrs. Gandhi's government.

The charges carry a maximum sentence of life impris-onment.

Reading a handwritten statement, Fernandes charged the police with subjecting him and his colleagues with unspecified, "mental and physical torture." He also threatened to boycott court proceedings if his plea for a fair trial was not accented.

Militant labor is increasingly flexing its muscles, demanding a share of decision making in economic policy. Business, the country's traditional power, is just plain angry at what it perceives as economic bumbling by the government and increasing interference in the private sector. So we see the odd spectre of the Canadian chamber of commerce hand in hand with the CLC in opposing wage and profit controls. Mounting disillusionment with controls may force the Trudeau administration to modify or perhaps even dispense with the measures before 1978.

Racist Remark?

In an article by Frances Russell in the Sept. 27 edition of the Vancouver Sun, the transport minister, Jack Davis, was quoted as saying to the Victoria chamber

Why, I saw a Chinese cook directing traffic onto a ferry on Bowen Island."

We would be most interested to know what significance Mr. Davis found in the fact that the person was Chinese. It would appear, particularly since the province prefers to hire Canadian citizens, that this was a reference, not to the person's nationality, but to his race. This part of Mr. Davis' speech appears to have been intended to deal with ferry workers, their wages and their duties, but not with their racial origins. The audience was clearly not a racial or racist organization. We are driven to the conclusion that this remark was a distinction as to the race of this person, a matter which was irrelevant to the conversation. Assuming that any meaning at all can be drawn from the nister's words, this, in our opinion, cor stitutes a racist remark. One is tempted to covered that this person was a cook by identifying him as a Chinese employee of the B.C. Ferries? We are astonished that it could not be reported that the minister's remark was similar to those in effect in the U.S. and brought into question immediately at the audience and the remark, if deliberate.

An explanation by Mr. Davis is clearly called for, as even the suggestion of racism is something that should never be Cameron Turner, John Le Huquet,

As Mr. Follows well knows, there are still comparatively few atheists in this country, so whether the warped muckmakers and muck-drinkers call themselves Christians or member of "other introspective religions" they are nearly all theists. Those seeking "guidance and help," just like Follows, from a god of some kind, will, like him, not get either, there being no god of any kind. And the evidence of that would be clear even to little children if they were allowed to wonder, watch and reason for

From what "evil" has the touted Bible and "God" saved us in years past and present? Not from brutal 12-hour-work-days for 11-year-old factory girls in Canada just last century. Nor from death-dealing mine conditions for half-starved men and boys in this century. Nor from continuing gross economic and humanitarian injustices. Only human desperation and heroic human actions have won improvements. Only human actions will win more. I only hope that this experience will alert everyone to the fact that much of the criticism of federal government programs is a result of ignorance of all the facts and an inclination on the part of all of us to criticize that which we do not fully understand. - Frances Elford, 3045 Larkdowne

We all know these screeches are usually accompanied by the roar of a 400 horsepower or more engine which has little or no noise reducing muffler. Of course these powerful takeoffs are followed by a demonstration of 0 to 60 m.p.h. in 10 seconds or less in a 30 mile zone.

Little Savages

The startling incident recently reported in your newspaper wherein an elderly lady was injured by pursesnatchers brings to light (once again) the very serious social problem of juvenile delinquency. On the cor trary, the surprising fact is that there are

Recently there has been a hue and 'cry for tougher measures to deal with juvenile offenders. It now seems the authorities are responding to the demands that something be done. So the pendulum is slowly but surely swinging back toward a more hard line approach to this problem. But I would like to suggest that whether methods of dealing with deliquents are shaped to satisfy the demands of ultraconservatives or ultra-liberals or even moderates, this social problem will not disappear or even decrease. It will, in fact increase Why? Because the problem is too big for the "authorities" to handle

The root cause of juvenile delinquency is the disintegration of family life, root cause of the disintegration of family life is disintegration of the fabric of our society. This is why the problem is too big for the authorities to handle. No longer can we expect governments to "take care of" this particular social mess. It is time for everyone to help, to pitch in and get their hands dirty, instead of sitting back with a sigh saying: "Those little savages." Caring about and a sincere desire to help these little savages is the only prerequisite needed to start helping.

In Middle Ages

Back in 1969, shortly after Prime Minister Trudeau formed his first government, there was a task force appointed to look into the whole area of release of government information. It recommended a total revision of the government's information services and the philosophy behind them in a scathing report that found the existing system en tirely inadequate.

It proposed a public declaration, perhaps enshrined in the constitution, stating the public's right to know about the activities of government.

The first recommendation was 'The right of Canadians to full, object obligation of the state to provide such information about its programs and policies be publicly declared and stand as the foun-

Baldwin says there is general agreement among political parties on the exclusion from public information that would endanger the security of the nation, affect criminal investigations, or invade the privacy of individuals.

The fight, he predicts, will arise over who is to be the arbiter — as to whether information falls into excluded categories. If the government claims the right to decide what shall, or shall not, be made public, then the act won't be worth the paper it is written on.

It would not help signaticantly, even if the legislation puts the onus on the government to produce all information that does not fall into excluded categories.

And unless there is appeal to some tribunal other than government on whether information should be public or classified, the exercise will all be in vain.

The Ark, though it is a structure of startlingly futuristic design and technology, is not the product of any sense of human grandeur. There is no longer time for that. As Mr.

Trudeau said, man must learn ways of "living lightly on the earth." And the Ark is a laboratory whose central purpose, according to Dr. Todd, is to test non-exploitative and less destructive methods of living.

Electrical power for the Ark is provided by a 20-kilowatt, three-windmill power plant. A 1,000-square-foot greenhouse will be capable of producing exotic tropical fruit, tomatoes year-round melons beans and year-round, melons, beans and potatoes, pears, cucumbers and lettuce in winter. Three fish ponds will produce a summer fish crop in just 10 weeks. The various elements of the Fertilized water from the fish tanks (fish "pee a lot", Dr Todd says) will be used to fertilize and heat the earth beds in the greenhouse. Solar panels on the roof will be used to heat the fishponds. And, in turn, parts of the fish ponds will be closed off and insulated to store heat for the Ark's living area. During two months of the year, sup-plementary heat may be necessary; it will be provided by two wood-burning stoves or by warm air blown from the

On a rotating basis, scientists from the New Alchemy In-stitute (including Dr. Todd) will live in the Ark with their families. The Ark is probably not an accurate prototype for future urban development; we will not see dwellings of the same design sprouting up in and around Toronto. But it is a preliminary model for a new form of human habitat — an experiment as necessary as it is ambitious.

In Prince Edward Island, Mr. Trudeau told about 200 people that there are three critical questions now confronting mankind: Will there be enough food? Will there be enough energy? And can we produce both without destroying the environment? To all three ques-tions, the Ark, and other experiments like it, are our first gestures of affirmation.

The State Has No Magic

By far the most successful minister in the government is Denis Howell. It never rains but it pours wherever he goes. One of his first official outings was to Cardiff and down it came. Since then his umbrella has been scarcely furled. Last week it was Yorkshire's turn for a dousing and in anticipation of his arrival six inches fell upon Leeds in three days. Howell the Rain King has become a good-natured national joke.

It was rash of him to accept the title Minister of Drought. We have a Minister of Housing not of the homeless, of the Environment not of pollution, and of Defence no longer of war. Of course one of the functions of an emergency minister is to carry the can on behalf of his colleagues in accordance with the theory that the government is blamed for everything including the weather; but Mr. Howell's can brimmeth over. When his work is completed he should be made Minister of Unemployment, then Minister of Industrial Decline, and, if all else fails, Minister of Economic Collapse.

As a general rule it is a mistake to appoint a special minister every time there is a special problem. It is an even greater mistake for the prime minister to "take charge" himself. The then Mr. Wilson once took charge of the winter, do you remember? The appointment of special Ministers with special responsibilities all helps to encourage the belief that a government responsible for everything can do anything.

It is a peculiar Western superstition. The vast majority of the people in the world, whatever hopes or fears they still may vest in gods or devils, expect nothing whatsoever good of government. We, on the other hand, instinctively turn to the tributed to its self-aggrandisement but the Chancellor certainly no magician.

Austria whose lead in the driver standings shrunk to eight points after Hunt's victory Sunday in the Canadian Grand Prix.

"When you consider what he's been through," said Hunt, referring to Lauda's hear-fatal crash two months ago in the West German Grand Prix, "I think it was a pretty gallant effort on the part of Niki to finish on the same lap as the leaders."

Lauda finished eighth, thus did not pick up any further points. Hunt, gaining nine points for the win, now has a total of 56 for the season.

Shoe Rates Forego Best of Them All

Bill Shoemaker, who has ridden more than 7,000 winners in his career, rode Forego to a breath-taking victory Saturday in the $283,700 Mariboro Cup and said, "Tve ridden a lot of horses, but this has got to be the best.
"It was one of the greatest horse races I've even been in or seen."

Forego, carrying 137 pounds, the most he has ever carried in a weight-laden career, appeared beaten just yards from the finish, but somehow he got his head in front of Honest Pleasure at the wire.

And he did it in a stakes record-equalling time of 2:00 flat for the 1½ miles and just missed his own track record of 1:39 4-5 set last year under 132 pounds. The stakes mark was set in 1975 by Wafima under 119.

"This was just together at under 119.

"This was just terribly exciting," owner Martha Gerry said of the win by the six-year-old gelding, who because of his high weight assignments and come-from-behind style has scored many exciting victories.

The triumph was accomplished on a track called muddy, but trainer Frank Whitely said there never was any thought of scratching Forego, who does not like an off track.

The decision paid off hand-somely, with a $170,220 prize total of $1,655,217. He passed Dahlia, $1,543,139, and ranksbetsind Kelso, $1,977,396 and Roundtable, $1,749,869, both long retired.

Forego might move into second place and within easy striking distance of Kelso on Oct. 23 when he goes in the $300,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup. He will have to spot three-year-olds only five pounds and will carry the same 126 pounds that his older rivals will tote.

After 1,170 combined trips to the plate for Brett and McRae, the AL batting title teetered on their final at bats in the Royals' game against Minnesota Sunday. Going into the minth inning, McRae was hitting 3326, Brett was batting 3326.

Brett, batting third, lofted a seemingly catchable fly to left field. But the ball fell in front of Steve Brye and skipped past him, as Brett raced home with an inside-the-park home run and a .3333 batting.

McRae contended that Brye deliberately let the ball drop.
"I was surprised," McRae Asiad. "It saw the guy come in and go back, then come in and go back, then come in and stop. He played it so well it went for a home run."

Brett agreed with McRae.

Saying: "I thought he let it drop."

"It all began when a few orchids and I were living in a small apartment. I was just starting in my career, loving and caring for my plants. We grew together, then when I moved into a spacious house with little furnishings, I threw a plant party, a catered, rather top drawer affair. Ev-eryone had to bring a house plant. The party was a huge success, and now I have almost 150 plants. — IN-

Women of the Yukon take hold of an idea and no matter how long it may take, they work at it until it is concluded to their satisfaction.

As an example of what I mean, let me tell you about a tapestry that has been in the making for almost two years and that, when completed (about the end of this month), will hang on a wall of the new territorial building in Whitehorse, close to the Victoria Faulkner Women's

Mrs. Margaret Smith, then club president, told me when the clib apply for some of the money available for that type of decorative art.

Result? A grant of $15,000 was authorized to produce a wool-stitched tapestry, 35 feet by 13 feet, for a wall in the new building. (As the spon-soring group is one of a Canaonly to cover costs.)

Immediately the group started looking for "the right

design."

By September, 1975 — after poring over hundreds of photographs and articles in the territorial archives — two young artists, Eve McBride and Julie Aldis, came up with sketches, that divided the tapestry into a series of five panels showing women's activities in a co-ordinated seasonal and historic story of the sonal and historic story of the Yukon.

and, where possible, to cor-rect anything like that.
"It had to be understood with women of all ages doing the stitching that the plan and the directions must be simple enough for all to understand,"

So, colors were numbered comparable to a paint-by-number set and those numbers were indicated not only on the canvas design but also on tiny swatches of wools attached to the paper bindings of the sketches.

Communities held stitching bees. In White-horse there were open gather-ings in public halls and schools where women and

Salting Easy Way To Preserve Food

More gardeners are interested this year in the storage of their own produce from garden or allotment. This can likely be traced to more allot-ment hlders and in general more people willing to do a bit of extra work to lower the cost of living for themselves. Storage takes the form of freezing, canning or salting.

Although we don't know the exact values remaining in foods processed by these methods, least is known about those which have been salted. est method, and is especially liked for putting green beans

Peonies Planted Now Will Thrive

The herbaceous peony has different growing needs than those demanded by the tree peony, though both kinds will thrive in any good garden soil if planted before October is ended. Most commonly grown is the peony with leaves dying down to ground level each fall, with no sign of the plant above ground.

Water is needed from late spring throughout summer until mid-September, for although cloudy days may occur, the soil below dries out unless the moisture is constantly replenished. Given this attention the peony will soon be doing well and repay an open sunny garden spot, though high shade for a cou-ple of hours while flowering in late May and June prolongs the life of the blooms. Tree peonies also need a soil with plentiful humus to hold moisture in summer but to allow drainage in wet winters.

Analysts here agree the word "sabotage," in Chinese "po huai" or "breakingspoiling," can mean many different things, but it is not a term party officials usually take lightly. By using it in public broadcasts and articles they are admitting to some serious problems.

Provincial reports of sabotage and accounts from tra-vellers' and other sources suggest the most recent sabotage activities range from worker slowdowns and absen-teeism to bank robberies and factory theft, as well as at-tempts at property destruc-tion by anti-Communist agents working for Taiwan.

Nationalist Chinese saboteurs, if there are any in China, would be expected to concentrate along the South China coast opposite Taiwan, and many of the most recent sabotage reports come from that area. ## Caulking Your Home here well.

It's a good time to caulk

If your home isn't well caulked or if the old caulking is drying out and falling away, a fresh job will probaaway, a fresh job will proba-bly pay for itself in savings on heating and cooling within a year. It will also prevent seepage of water into your home where it can cause rot and paint failure. And it will cut down on drafts and the infiltration of dust.

BUYING CAULK. Caulk BUYING CAULK. Caulk has improved in the past few years. The new formulations are a vast improvement over the previous oil-base preparations. Oil-base caulk is still available, and it's still the best seller because it's so cheap. But if you buy it, you're a penny-wise fool. It will 'dry out, shrink, crack and fall out of place in a few years. Then you'll have to scrape out the residue and start over.

your home when the weather gou'll probably never have to is generally dry, and so is caulk again. The best is your house, so caulk will adurethane caulk, but it's hard to find. You'll have to check in the Yellow Pages under Caulking (or Caulking) Mate-rials and Equip.

If you can't find the above product, or if it seems like too much bother, get a premium acrylic latex formula.

WHERE TO CAULK. Caulk any seam on the outside of your home that can leak air in or out. A list of important spots would include: around door and window frames, where siding meets corner trim all around the sill trim, all around the sill (where wood meets founda-tion), between chimney and siding, between porch and house, around sillcocks, dryer vents, outside electrical outlets, between gable and eaves (if attic is heated), where storm windows meet window frames and at any cracks or frames, and at any cracks or unputtied nail holes you dis-cover when inspecting your house.

While you're making an inspection tour, take notes on what needs caulking. Then you can figure how much caulk to buy. Figure one cartridge per two windows, four cartridges for the sill, one per corner of your home, two for a chimney and one for every a chimney and one for every

HOW TO CAULK. Before you squeeze a bead of caulk, make sure the surface to be sealed is sound. Chip away loose paint and caulk. If your house is dirty, scrub the joints with a brush and soapy water, rinse with a hose and let dry a day or two.

When you're ready fo go, slip a cartridge in your caulking gun, snip off the tip at an angle, puncture the seal with a length of wire and squeeze the trigger. Before the caulk starts oozing out, place the nozzle in position. Squeeze again and start laying a bead. The trick to a neat job is to The trick to a neat job is to balance the rate of flow against the speed at which you move the gun.

You want to lay enough caulk to cover both sides of the joint, but you don't want caulk flowing all over the place. Once you start a bead, try to keep it going. If you stop it's hard to start again smoothly. If the caulk starts to flow too fast, twist the plunger on the gun to stop the flow.

Try to lay beads like those shown in the sketch. On especially deep cracks like the vne at the sill, stuff the crack with oakum rope (plumbing suppliers sell it) before you caulk. This provides a backup and a better seal with less caulk. Plastic rope works, too, but it doesn't compress very well, so it has to be just the right diameter to fit the crack you're sealing.

Fire-Fighting Tips Worth Repeating

DEAR READERS: Today begins Fire Prevention Week.
I've had so much response to the column I published last — Have a fire drill in your year on the same occasion that I thought I'd reprint it.

In 1974 approximately 12,000 Americans perished in nearly three million fires. And in Canada, there were nearly 900 deaths caused by approximately 79,000 fires.

Never leave small children alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

Gals-Only Session On Jobs

A job information program at Canada Manpower Wednes-day on how to become a mechanic, carpenter, lawyer or pilot is just a little different.

It is for women only.

About 75 women who hold these and other unusual jobs will be on hand to explain how they got the work and what the qualifications are.

Some will provide information on more traditional fe-male jobs like social work and clerical positions.

The program, which runs from 4 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at 810 Fort Street, will not have the usual career day format, says Canada Manpower regional manager Stan Purdy.

The emphasis will be on in-

VANCOUVER - About 1,700 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers went on strike Sunday night in the Vancouver area - the first of a series of illegal strikes over technological change issues.

In Victoria, a spokesman for the post office said mail is being handled normally.

However, he added, it won't be long before there is a delay in mail destined for the city if Vancouver postal workers remain off the job for any length of time.

He said Victoria CUPW members have been consulted on the new automated ma-chinery that will be used in the new post office, scheduled to open in early part of next year in the Glanford area.

The spokesman said the new machines will not replace jobs easier, doing away with a lot of "the backbreaking, dull work."

NDP Attacks Corporate Taxation Loopholes

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Ed Broadbent, national New Dem-ocratic Party leader, says Canada's tax system has widened the gap between rich and poor during the Trudeau years by providing extensive loopholes and gimmicks for large corporations and people with high incomes.

Broadbent was speaking at a weekend convention of the Nova Scotia New Democratic
